ABSTRACT

IUU Fishing (Illegal, Unreported, and Unregulated) by Dongwon Industries to the Liberian Sea in 2013 drew public attention because of illegal action in the Liberian Sea since 2010. As a result, the European Union gave South Korea a 'yellow card' to ban all seafood industry activities from entering the European Union and other regions. As a country with the world's second-largest sea power, it damages national prestige by exploiting marine wealth. This research aims to analyze Greenpeace's efforts against Dongwon Industries' IUU fishing in the Liberian Sea. This research uses qualitative methods with a literature review as data collection techniques sources. The concept used in the framework is (Non-governmental organization) NGO and environmental resilience. This research shows that NGO Greenpeace's effort is quite effective in stopping IUU Fishing Dongwon Industries because Dongwon is the largest seafood company in South Korea. Greenpeace's efforts against IUU fishing have impacted the South Korean Distant Water Fisheries Industry and have maintained the resilience of Liberia's marine environment.

ABSTRAK

Penangkapan ikan IUU (Illegal, Tidak Dilaporkan, dan Tidak Diatur) oleh Dongwon Industries ke Laut Liberia pada tahun 2013 menarik perhatian publik karena tindakan ilegal di Laut Liberia sejak tahun 2010. Akibatnya, Uni Eropa memberi Korea Selatan 'kartu kuning' untuk melarang semua kegiatan industri makanan laut memasuki Uni Eropa dan Eropa dan wilayah lainnya. Sebagai negara dengan kekuatan laut terbesar kedua di dunia, hal ini kedua terbesar di dunia, hal ini merusak gengsi nasional dengan mengeksploitasi kekayaan laut. Penelitian ini bertujuan untuk menganalisis upaya Greenpeace melawan penangkapan ikan IUU Dongwon Industries di Laut Liberia. Penelitian ini menggunakan metode kualitatif dengan literature review sebagai teknik pengumpulan data. Konsep yang digunakan dalam kerangka pemikiran adalah (Non-governmental organization) NGO dan ketahanan lingkungan. Hasil penelitian ini menunjukkan bahwa upaya LSM Greenpeace cukup efektif dalam menghentikan IUU Fishing Dongwon Industries karena Dongwon merupakan perusahaan makanan laut terbesar di Korea Selatan. Upaya Greenpeace melawan IUU Fishing telah berdampak pada Industri Perikanan Perairan Jauh Korea Selatan Industri Perikanan Perairan Jauh Korea Selatan dan telah menjaga ketahanan lingkungan laut Liberia.
