In the process of preparing this thesis, the author received a lot of guidance, new knowledge, and encouragement from various parties. The support and attention given has been a great motivation as well as the main support for the author in completing this final project. Therefore, on this grateful occasion, the author would like to express his deepest gratitude to:

The author wholeheartedly realizes that this thesis is still far from perfect. The author's limited experience and knowledge certainly leaves many inevitable shortcomings. However, behind all these limitations, there is determination and seriousness to complete this work as a form of effort as well as a valuable learning journey. Therefore, the author really hopes that there will be constructive criticism, suggestions, and inputs, so that this simple work can be a foothold towards better writing in the future. Hopefully this thesis will not only meet academic requirements, but also provide benefits, add insight, and be an inspiration for both the author himself and readers who are willing to study it.
